Hair can never be made to grow again after the roots are dead. But few of us grow bald in a day and have ample warning that our hair is steadily getting thinner.

FORMER WILLIMANTIC OFFICER
WITNESS IN MURDER CASE
(Special to The Bulletin.)
Willimantic, Nov. 27.—James J. Lee of this city, a member of the police force, formerly connected with the United States department of justice, will be one of the principal witnesses in the case of the famous Major Mitchell murder case taken to Tacoma, Washington, for trial. Lee played a principal part in the arrest of Captain Robert Rosenbluth of New York, and Sergeant Roland P. Pothier of Providence, R. I., charged with the murder of Major Alexander P. Cronkrite at Camp Lewis.

Mr. Lee went to Tacoma in September 1922 to testify and after two weeks' session of the grand jury in Tacoma, at which testimony was given by over sixty witnesses, secret indictment was returned to the district attorney in New York.

Evidence purporting to show that the United States has no jurisdiction in the case was offered and after a hearing by the grand jury, Commissioner Samuel M. Hittcock, Rosenbluth's attorney fighting extradition on the grounds that Camp Lewis was not under federal control at the time, Lee was called to the stand. Lee testified that he had evidence that Camp Lewis was purchased by the government prior to the time that he would not submit it at this time.

Commissioner Hittcock has reserved decision and ordered the hearing put over until Dec. 2, and the hearing will be held at the residence of Captain Rosenbluth to the state of Washington. Mr. Lee will be called in as one of the principal witnesses. Pothier has already been committed to the island to the state of Washington.

Local people who remember the part Mr. Lee played in the arrest and trial that follow are awaiting the decision of Commissioner Hittcock with great interest.

HUGH WALPOLE LECTURES ON BOOKS AND FRIENDSHIP
Hugh Walpole, the eminent English novelist and literary critic, opened the Connecticut lecture on Books and Friendship. His large audience thoroughly enjoyed his interesting exposition of what books mean to him and his witty touches as he told of personal experiences in his acquaintance of books, the stages in reading and his own method of reading. The lecture was given at the Washington hotel and was a great success.

Mr. Walpole was introduced by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, general chairman of the committee of arrangements for the course.

Mr. Walpole developed the idea that books have a personality and a vitality that appeal to us just as personal friends do and that the real friendship between books is our own. Let's be brave in our choice of books and not mind our superior friends who are always busy trying to put in our places. Referring to the earliest books he had a chance to read, he remarked that parents and relatives have a curious idea of the kind of books you want to read. He said that he had a book that was in the hands of another who didn't care for it or sometimes even knew that he was reading it.

He spoke of the thrill that comes from acquiring rare books, first editions and distinctive volumes. In this connection he spoke of his collection of first editions of Sir Walter Scott's novels, manuscripts and letters of which he said he could be justly proud. Books, he concluded, can be the best friends in the world.

CHIEF STANTON ADVISES
CLEANING OUT CHIMNEYS
Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton, speaking Monday night at the 10 o'clock meeting of the month, called attention once more to the many chimneys in the city in need of a thorough cleaning out. He pointed out that many chimneys are not cleaned out in the city this winter if people are not careful of their chimneys. At the present time the city is in need of a few weeks, when snow is on the ground and travel becomes difficult, a chimney fire will be the making of a more serious fire and greater losses may be caused.

Chief Stanton requests that occupants of houses look at their chimneys and, if soot is found, use the clean-out at the base of the chimney or knock out a few bricks and rid the house of the danger of a fire.

Only a few winters ago travel became almost impossible for the fire department and Chief Stanton warned the people to take care of their chimneys. His request was backed up by cars that were held to a minimum. Chief Stanton asks that people take heed of the warning of the chief and clean out their chimneys before it is too late.

SUPREME COURT ORDERS
STATE TO PAY $18,875.34

Hartford, Nov. 27.—Decisions in eighteen cases were handed down today by the Connecticut supreme court. The state of Connecticut, defendant in the case of the Singer Manufacturing company against G. Harold Gilpatrick, state treasurer, is ordered to pay to the plaintiff $18,875.34 with interest, according to a decision written by Justice Hinman. The company had paid no federal income tax on its income for 1919 because the deficit from 1918. The state allowed no deduction on account of the excess of net loss for 1919 over the net income for 1918 and it was from this ruling that the appeal was taken.

Judge Hinman also wrote the opinion, upholding the judgment by Judge Kollogg, that a judgment given in the courts of Iowa against the Hartford Life Insurance company was valid and that Peter C. Frick, the plaintiff, was entitled to recover the amount of the Iowa judgment with interest. The case was originally brought in the district courts of Iowa in 1914.
